RETAIL FIXTURES MANUFACTURER CASE STUDY

A leading retail fixtures manufacturer unknowingly absorbed customer shipping costs, lacking visibility into its $3.3 million annual parcel spend. With Translmpact, the company uncovered hidden charges, corrected billing practices, and gained stronger accessorial discounts—reducing parcel costs by 22% and restoring control over shipping operations despite limited resources and intermediaries.

The Challenge: Lack of Visibility

TransImpact Helps Reduce Hidden Costs and Achieve 22% Parcel Savings

This retail fixtures manufacturer supplies display systems, shelving, and in-store merchandising products to some of the largest retailers in North America. Standard industry practice dictates that retailers cover shipping for fixture deliveries.

However, a miscommunication between carriers and retail customers—and a critical misclassification that treated the company as a product shipper instead of a fixture provider—forced the manufacturer to absorb costs that should have been billed to its customers.

Without dedicated logistics resources or visibility into parcel invoices, the issue went undetected until a new logistics leader engaged TransImpact. Using advanced analytics and expert support, TransImpact exposed the problem, corrected the billing process, and unlocked significant carrier discount improvements.
